

As a follow-up to the TechSolve report, Staff started to review the current “Table” to determine if new uses could be added, if similar uses could be combined, and if antiquated uses could be re-categorized or eliminated. While reviewing the table for modifications, Staff had to be cognizant of the concerns associated with Proposition 207.

In 2006, Proposition 207 was passed by the voters providing a mechanism for property owners to receive monetary compensation from a municipality if it was determined that a land use action diminished the fair market value of the property in which the land use action had taken place. With this in mind, Staff had to remain mindful in looking at the table that if a proposed use was to be eliminated from the table that Staff would be able to find a similar category in which the use could be located. Staff believes that the proposed update does not create any potential for future conflict.

Overall, there have been roughly 50 modifications including: further definition of particular uses, additional zoning designations a use may locate in, reclassification of uses, new uses that are not analogous to existing uses, and deletions of uses. Most notable of the modifications include animal daycare, medical marijuana, mini-storage, solar, and youth oriented recreational activities. In the attached “Table”, areas where uses have been struck-through in blue have either been eliminated or reclassified; areas where uses are in red are new uses, have been combined with another use, or have been expanded to further define a use.

DISCUSSION

Largely the “Table” has remained unchanged since the 1963 Zoning Code, with minor modifications taking place throughout the years, primarily to further define uses. The most recent notable change has been the inclusion of large single-use retailers in 2001. While Staff cannot create a “Table” that is all encompassing, Staff believes the proposed “Table” is diverse enough to be able to find similarities between uses that may not be specifically provided for in the “Table”, which historically, has been a practice of the Zoning Administrator.

Some of the more notable uses that have been added or further defined include the educational category which provides a breakdown between elementary grades, high school grades, higher education and alternative schools, and trade/vocational schools. The current code has provisions for college, technical schools, dancing, kindergartens, and trade and vocational schools. A trend that has been occurring over the past few years and is anticipated to continue include privately funded schools (all grades), and colleges catered to professionals. The privately funded schools currently have no designation and historically have been few and far between. Colleges catered to professionals have historically been allowed in the C-2, C-3 designation, whereas the current proposal is to allow the use to be considered in the I-1 designation with a Use Permit; this is to allow flexibility to have these types of schools within close proximity to many of the business parks throughout the City (such as in the airpark area).

Additionally, Staff is recommending additional uses be added to the “gymnasium” designation to provide further clarification as to where yoga, martial arts, and small fitness type users could locate; historically they have not had their own classification. Additionally, Staff felt the general nature of these types of businesses do not always generate the amounts of traffic that a fully developed health club may provide, and expanded the areas that these users could locate by allowing them “by right” in C-1 districts. Similarly, Staff created a category to accommodate the youth oriented athletic activities including bounce gyms, cheerleading and dance schools, and other youth oriented activities. It is important to note that while a use may be considered in a new district, such as gymnasium above, Staff still reviews the requests to ensure that there is compatibility with the overall site by way of looking at parking, setbacks, and other code requirements to prevent site constraints.

Another significant addition to the "Table" is the inclusion of the mini-warehousing/storage use. Historically, this use has been categorized in the "Storage and moving warehousing category". The current proposed category further defines these types of uses to be intended for personal uses (rather than business oriented), and allows for ancillary storage of vehicles. Staff is recommending they be allowed "by-right" in C-3, I-1 and I-2 categories, and considerable with a Use Permit in C-2 designations.
